SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 28.—Declaring that the Republican party must be "the party of the future," that it is the duty of its membership to say what its purpose shall be, but that the "supreme interest" should be the promotion of the best interests of the republic and its citizens, Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican National Committee, made public here today a list of prominent members to serve on the advisory committee on policies and platform.

In addition to the name of William Howard Taft, the only living ex-President of the United States, the list includes all the living former chairmen of the National Committee, former members of the Progressive party, State Governors, editors, labor leaders, bankers, manufacturers and educators. HAMBY ABANDONS PLAN FOR SUICIDE

Didn't Wish to Get Warden Into Trouble.

Only friendship for Major Lewis E. Lawes, warden of Sing Sing, prevents Gordon Fawcett Hamby, bank robber and murderer, from committing suicide and cheating the electric chair. The murderer calmly confided to Major Lawes yesterday, Hamby is to die to-night.

Yesterday in the death house the bank robber, who has not once lost his nerve or coolness since his arrest for raiding the East Brooklyn Savings Bank and killing two men, told the warden he had had a plan all worked out to save the State executioner his labor, but had decided not to get the warden into trouble.

"You've treated me so squarely and been such a good fellow to me, warden, I've decided to let the law take its course," he said.

Hamby is met death alone, for yesterday Gov. Smith granted a reprieve to "Ricky" Harrison, another "murderer," who was to die at the same time. Harrison's counsel will move for a new trial. When the bank robber, through Major Lawes, got some money he had deposited under the name of Hamby in the prison office and bought cigarettes for the other death house inmates "Ricky" led the cheers.

For the first time since 1899 a woman, Nellie By, newspaper writer, is to see an execution in this State. Miss By, who has been in correspondence with Hamby, has the right to use a pass issued to an evening newspaper.

Although Hamby has shown no signs of weakening or desire to postpone his death, he has intimated to prison officials that he had no hand in the robbery, as he previously confessed, but cannot speak because he would get a pal in trouble. He has said he wishes to go to the chair unattended by a prison chaplain.

N. J. Man Out Early for Congress.

TEBENTON, N. J., Jan. 28.—Alfred Chapman of 201 Wilkinson avenue, Jersey City, fled to-day with the Secretary of State a petition nominating himself as a primary candidate for Congress on the Republican ticket in the Eighth district. He is the first man in New Jersey to file a nominating petition for the 1920 primary.

BUTLER BOOM GETS QUAKER CITY BOOST

PERSECUTION IS CHARGED

Federal Trade Commission Said to Engage in Destructive Efforts.

Special Dispatch to THE SUN.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28.—Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, was introduced to the Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon today in the Bellevue-Stratford with a hint from Alva Johnson, the new president of the Chamber, that Mr. Butler might be the best of the Presidential timber for the Republican nomination this year.

Butler, the chief speaker at the luncheon, devoted his talk to outlining a policy for the government and for business, which he said, is necessary to forestall an industrial warfare far more hideous than an international conflagration. Among the chief points in the address of Mr. Butler were: Cessation of restraint of business by the Federal Trade Commission, which he said, persecutes instead of helping business; stabilization of a Federal commission on industrial relations which should represent the public alone and be permanent; adoption of a new viewpoint toward labor, admitting it to a co-operation in modern business, though requiring of it equal responsibility for its actions.

Trade Commission Criticized.

In his address Mr. Butler said in part: "We have at the present time a Federal Trade Commission appointed pursuant to the provisions of a statute as to its great duty. The Federal Trade Commission has, however, utterly misinterpreted its proper functions, and has preferred to persecute business rather than to protect it. It has been cheaply won upon appeals which are to follow the violent denunciation of some body or something for an alleged wrong. It has been preferred to the much more sound and lasting approval of an intelligent public that would follow upon constructive action, which should indicate how the business of the country might be better and more wisely developed.

"It is little short of pathetic after some of the best brains in the nation have organized and set on foot a great industrial undertaking which engages the cooperation of thousands of men and women, reduces the cost of production and makes the original price paid to some staple article and begins to extend American trade into new lands to find them summarily brought to book as criminals by the Attorney-General of the United States or by the United States District Attorney in some judicial district.

"The course of wisdom and of progress would be for the commission to hear the plans of those who wish to develop an undertaking of this sort; to point out in advance what would be considered unfair business practices and what would not; to indicate the line where monopoly would be held in check, and which therefore must not be crossed; and then to send the new undertaking on its way with the full knowledge and cooperation of the Federal Trade Commission, with which thereafter the undertaking should stand in the closest possible relations."

Parallel in National Banks.

Such a policy by the commission, Mr. Butler said, would simply repeat in the field of industry the precise policy which the government has followed with extraordinary success in the case of national banks.

The Federal Commission on Industrial Relations was suggested by Mr. Butler as a means of removing from business the doubt and uncertainty which confront it relative to the labor situation. The speaker said that the commission should represent the public alone and that it should be open to wage workers, employers and to any body of individual citizens or to the Attorney-General of the United States. Mr. Butler asserted that public opinion would be sufficient to enforce the commission's recommendations.

A warning note against the building up of huge political machines to maintain and increase the policy of control between government and business was sounded by Mr. Butler. On this point he said:

"The unchecked development of such a tendency would in time completely alter the American form of government and revolutionize American business. It is perfectly easy by following such a course as outlined to transfer a democracy into an autocracy of office holders and inspectors. Nominally this autocracy would represent and carry out the wish of the people, but actually it would be a tyranny of an office holding class."

MISSISSIPPI PUTS AMENDMENT TO POPULAR VOTE

REICHMOND, Va., Jan. 28.—By a vote of 12 to 1, the Senate Committee on Elections today rejected the woman suffrage amendment to the Federal Constitution. The House adopted yesterday a resolution to refer the amendment to a vote of the people, but as it was a joint resolution it has no binding effect.

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 28.—The question of permitting women to vote in primary elections in Mississippi was finally settled to-day by the refusal of the lower House of the Legislature to reconsider the Whitworth bill. The vote was 71 to 51.

Battalion of the Federal suffrage amendment will be submitted to popular vote in the general election in November.

AUSTIN, TEXAS, Jan. 28.—The Texas woman's primary suffrage act was upheld to-day when the Supreme Court refused to grant a writ of error in the case originating in McLennan county, where the Third Court of Civil Appeals declared the law constitutional.

AMNESIA VICTIM COMING HOME

Former Aviator Fails to Recognize Father.

Hamilton Gill, Jr., of 191 Halsey street, Brooklyn, who was found suffering from amnesia in a hospital at Camden, N. J., after an absence of several days, will be brought home to-day. He did not recognize his father when the latter visited the hospital to make arrangements for his transfer. Mrs. Gill explained the action of her son in drawing $100 from a Brooklyn bank Saturday, just before his disappearance, by the statement that the money belonged to the Tompkins Avenue Congregational Church, of which he was an officer. The young man had found the duties arduous and was to resign the following day, she said. He intended to return the money at that time.

Special Dispatch to THE SUN.

ATLANTIC CITY, Jan. 28.—Marcus W. Alexander of Boston charged before the convention of the National Association of Merchant Tailors here today that Bernard M. Baruch wrecked the industrial conference called in Washington last October by President Wilson and that this wrecking may have been done for political reasons. At the conference Mr. Alexander was secretary of the employers' group, while Mr. Baruch was chairman of the public group.

Senator Thompson Introduces Bill to Create State Commission.

Special Dispatch to THE SUN.

ALBANY, Jan. 28.—Senator George F. Thompson, Republican, of Niagara county, to-day started the fight for Gov. Smith's proposed State control of milk production and distribution.

Charging that the big milk distributors are boosting the price of liquid milk to curtail its use and thereby leave more of this product for the manufacture of big profit yielding by-products, Senator Thompson introduced a bill creating a State milk committee of three at $7,500 a year each. The measure proposes to confer power upon the committee to fix the price to be charged for milk by the producer, the middlemen and the retailer, with virtual control of the production, transportation, sale of milk and milk products.

Senator Thompson alleges that the big milk distributors buy all the fluid milk possible, raise the price to a prohibitive point, and then butter enough to control the market and keep the price of that commodity so low the farmers do not make butter, and then reap their profits by converting the rest of the milk into non-perishable products.

"The price he gets for these assurances profits so enormous that the losses in butter are absorbed, leaving a balance for dividends on large capitalizations, high salaries and heavy accumulations of money," he said.
